Understanding the Twelve Zodiac Signs

Supplementary Guide

Image from Comte C. de Saint-Germain's Practical Astrology (1901)

The earliest recording of the twelve zodiac signs is dated to around 700 BC and found in Babylonian astronomy. The path of the sun in the heavens as observed from a geocentric point of view was subdivided into twelve equal coordinate zones. The first Babylonian calendar was keyed to the twelve signs, with the positioning of the sun during the vernal equinox marking the first sign, or Aries (known historically as the First Point of Aries).

In the Babylonian star catalogs, the twelve signs were assigned names, which have become the predecessors of the names we ascribe to the twelve zodiac signs today. See the table on the subsequent page.

Babylonian Name	Modern Name	Babylonian Name	Modern Name
Agrarian Worker	Aries	The Scales	Libra
Steer of Heaven	Taurus	The Scorpion	Scorpio
The Great Twins	Gemini	The Soldier	Sagittarius
The Crayfish	Cancer	The Goat Fish <sup>2</sup>	Capricorn
The Lion	Leo	The Great One	Aquarius
The Furrow <sup>1</sup>	Virgo	Tail of the Swallow	Pisces

Note 1 (for Virgo). “The Furrow” is a reference to the goddess Shala’s symbolic ear of corn. Shala is the Sumerian goddess of the grains, of abundant harvests, agriculture, and of compassion and health.

Note 2 (for Capricorn). “The Goat Fish” is a reference to the Sumerian god Enki, a patron deity of the crafts, trades, water, commerce, and intelligence. The god Enki was represented by a goat-fish chimera.

Assuming the “as above, so below” philosophy, holding that what happens in the heavens above us denotes what happens here on earth among us, the twelve zodiac signs have come to represent characteristic modes of expression and influences over the houses and celestial bodies. It is through the sign that you interpret a given house or planet in astrology. In the OOTK, depending on your adopted methodology, the zodiac signs denote timing (because they represent the segments of the ecliptic or path that the sun travels on across the heavens, day to day through the year, and therefore marking the calendar year and the seasons) or the signs denote set human personality traits and characteristics.

The twelve zodiac signs and their modes of expression as we understand them today are noted in this section, which will help round out your understanding and interpretation of your birth chart. The previous section “Understanding Your Twelve Houses” gave you a reference for what each 30° section of your birth chart stands for. How that area of life is impacted will be determined by the governing zodiac sign, which you can locate and read more about here. What corresponds with the zodiac signs as noted herein will be how the house in your birth chart is ruled and how that area of your life will manifest for you. Like “Understanding Your Twelve Houses,” this section is for reference only, to provide a resource for understanding the twelve zodiac signs and how to interpret them for yourself.
